For Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale a tract of 80 acres of land, on the Colchester road, five miles from Alexandria, adjoining the lands of Haywood Foote and Dennis Johnston. The greater part of this tract is fine meadow land, abundantly supplied with water. Also one other tract of 261 acres, on the Ravensworth road, about 6 miles from Alexandria, and one mile from the first mentioned tract, adjoining land of Thos. Janney and Mr.
M'Pherson: the greater part of this tract is in wood, the soil good and highly susceptible of improvement from the use of plaster. If these lands are not sold before the first of January next, they will then be for rent.

CHARLES SIMMS.
Gill Nets! Gill Nets!
To the Citizens of Washington, Fredrick, and Montgomery counties.

As the General Assembly of Maryland will sit in the course of a few weeks, I take the liberty of calling the attention of the people of the upper counties to the subject of Gill Nets; that all those who may agree with me in opinion, may unite in petitions to the Legislature to pass such laws as may effectually prevent the use of them hereafter in the Potomac.
Since the introduction of these Nets into our waters, the people of the upper counties have experienced the most pernicious effects of this practice. It is a fact well known, that many persons at the last season, after leaving their homes, with their teams, at the most busy season of the year, and travelling, perhaps, from 50 to 100 miles to reach the nearest landings, and after being detained there a considerable time, exposed to the inclemencies of the weather, and often without any shelter but what was afforded to them by the coverings of their waggons, while their crops too were suffering greatly at home, were obliged at last to return without any fish. Some procured their Herrings, but not one in ten could get the Shad they wanted for their families. These Gill Nets, it is said, are fished almost exclusively by persons from the Eastward—a covetous people they must be—they would take the bread from our mouths if they could do it—and they certainly will the fish if left to themselves. It is stated they had 500 vessels engaged in this business during the last season, such a number of Nets will form such an obstruction in the river as to keep back the Shad altogether, and by breaking the schools of Herrings will render even the catching of them uncertain. And what adds to our grievance, the fish that are caught in this manner are not disposed of to our citizens, but are cured on board the vessels that take them, and carried as an article of traffic to some other portions of the Union, or, perhaps, to foreign parts.

The people of the upper counties are peculiarly situated; living remote from any of the Rivers, with which nature has so bountifully watered our state, they have only an opportunity afforded to them once a year of procuring fish of any kind for their families; and it rests with the Legislature to determine whether they shall be deprived of this right, attended as it is too, with great sacrifice, expense and trouble; and it must be known too to the members that may compose that body, that fish, from long use and custom, have become indispensably necessary to our families.

If any doubt should exist as to the facts herein stated, I have only to observe that they will be entirely removed by referring to any one from either of the upper counties, who attended at the landings either of the two last seasons, particularly the last.
Having said much more than I intended, I have only to call upon all those who feel an interest in this business, to lose no time in getting signatures to such a petition as I have recommended,—and also to see and converse upon the subject with such persons as they may think proper to send as delegates to the next General Assembly; and I have also to request the favor of the editors of the Fredericktown papers, to give these remarks a place in their respective papers, that the subject may be fully brought before the people of the upper counties.

of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Wash-times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns.—All per-

Gone to the Southward or

Westward,

A YELLOW WOMAN, called Celia

A Detcher, in the 23d year of her age, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high—marks like mole on the right side of her face, which, with several letters on her left arm, were made with india ink. She is about four months gone in a state of pregnancy—followed her husband, Jim Clark, a yellow man, who was purchased from this place and taken away in company with a large number of slaves, about two weeks ago, by a man of the name of Basset. It is supposed they have gone to the westward: Celia was born free, and had with her a notarial certificate of her freedom, and description of her person. Her mother, the subscriber, is much afflicted by her manner of going away, and desires that any humane people who may chance to meet with her, will persuade her to return, being apprehensive that when she gets into a strange country, where she will be unknown and out of the reach of her friends and those who would be likely to protect her, attempts may be made by some avaricious and unprincipled persons, to deprive her of her liberty, and sell her for a slave. Should any such attempts be made, fifty dollars reward will be paid to any person who will communicate such information as shall lead to the conviction of the offenders, and the recovery of the woman.

MUSIC—AN ODE.

Long had the race of mortals here below, Trod the rough path of wretchedness and wo,

While every blessing of celestial birth, Provok'd by crimes, indignant left the earth:
One solace then to human life was given, Indulgent Music left her native heav'n;

Borne on swift pinions from the world above,
To earth she comes, the messenger of love.
Here as she touch'd, and clapp'd her downy wings, [strings:] Joy tun'd her voice, and struck her golden

Her magic power first banish'd wo and strife And sung a requiem to the ills of life.
Hail, heavenly maid, what wondrous deeds Of old,

By thee achieved, by ancient poets told;
When Thracian Orpheus caught celestial fire, Drew rocks and trees obsequious to his lyre,
And from pale Pluto's ghastly realms set free

His beauteous, long lost, loved Eurydice, The Dryades' harp, the watery Tritons' shell, O'er earth and ocean wide thy triumphs swell: [mild,]

Sooth'd by thy power ferocious men grew Despair was pleas'd, and moping madness smil'd.

Thy breath inspires alike in every age,
The high, the low, the savage and the sage, Dealt with no partial hand, but free as air, All ranks, all classes, in thy favors share.

Monarchs for thee, from their high thrones retire; [lyre:]
The warrior quits the field to snatch the Jocund shepherd, all the livelong day, Beguiles the hours with thy enchanting lay.

From yonder hill, across the spacious plains, Hark! the shrill voices of the laboring swains; [boring vane, While the blythe ploughman of the neigh-Whistles in concert with the threshing flail.

Swift o'er the mead, the milk-maid trips along,
An dethers the hamlet with her matin song;
Then all the day with undiminish'd zeal, Sings and beats time beside the spinning wheel.

The sailor-boy, far on the watery deep, Lash'd to the helm his midnight vigils keep,
When nought appears above, below, abroad, But heaven's wide concave and the sable flood,

Oft as he thinks of home, and heaves a sigh, Music befriends him with her lullaby; Pierc'd with the thought of her he left behind, [mind,
He sings and soothes the anguish of his Religion owns and courts thy kindly power, To gild the dark, and bless the lightsome hour.

What varied strains from thy exhaustless Will wizard fancy draw for ever more!
And sacred anthems long from earth will rise,
Wafted by thee, like incense to the skies.
Music! thou zest of life, and balm of age,
To cheer man's path through this long pilgrimage,

In every state be thou my partner made, By night, by day, the sunshine and the shade; [angels sing, Teach me, while here, the strains which From hearts devout, to heaven's immortal king; [love,
Tune my last breath with pure seraphic
And hymn my passage to the choir above.

MARCELLUS.

From the West-Jersey Gazette.

LOOK AT T'OTHER SIDE, JIM.

When a boy, as I was one day passing through the market with my brother Joe, I espied a beautiful orange lying on the top of a basket full of the same kind of fruit.
I immediately enquired the price, and was proceeding to buy it, when my brother exclaimed with a shrewdness which I shall never forget: Look at t'other side, Jim.

I looked, and to my astonishment it was entirely rotten.
In passing through life, I have been frequently benefited by this little admonition.

When I hear the tongue of slander levelling its venom against some fault or foible of a neighbor; I think, look on t'other side, Jim.—Be moderate; have charity. Perhaps the fault or foible, you talk so much and so loudly of, is almost the only one in your neighbor's character, and perhaps you have as great or greater ones in your own.

It may be, this is your neighbor's weak side, and except this, he is a good citizen, a kind neighbor, an affectionate father and a useful member of society. Others may listen to the story of calumny, but remember, they will fear and despise the calum-niator. Learn to overlook a fault in your neighbors; for perhaps you may some time wish them to pardon a fault in you.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASH-INGTON.

Saturday, Nov. 21.

Some interest, and some amusement too, was created in the house of representatives yesterday, by a petition which the speaker presented from Mathew Lyon, of the state of Kentucky. The prayer of this petition is to be allowed some remuneration for the imprisonment sustained, and the fine exacted from him, under the sedition law, while he was a representative in congress for the state of Vermont, and which the condition of his pecuniary circumstances, reduced very low by misfortune, induce him to ask from congress. Mr. Williams, of N. Carolina, moved to refer the petition to the judiciary committee—but Mr. Edwards, of N. Carolina, was of opinion that, as the petition contained a claim, it would be more advisable to refer it to the committee of claims.—To this Mr. Williams replied that, though there was a claim it was one arising out of the operation of a law which the petitioner considered as unconstitutional, and was therefore a subject appropriate to the judiciary committee. The petition was then read on the requisition of Mr. Spencer, and seemed to excite some feeling and some merriment by the strong terms in which the sedition law and its advocates were censured, and the opponents of that unpopular law were praised and almost apotheosized.—In the end the petition was referred to the committee on the judiciary.

A resolution was reported declaring the admission of the Illinois, as a state, into the union. It was read twice, and ordered to be engrossed for a third reading on Monday.

A resolution passed, on motion of Mr.
Rhea, to refer that part of the president's message which recommends the confirmation of the grant of lands by the friendly Creek Indians to general Jackson and colonel Hawkins, to the committee on private land claims.

A resolution was also passed, on motion of Mr. Poindester, directing the committee on public lands to enquire into the expediency of prohibiting the emigration and settlement of the Choctaw Indians on the lands of the U. States west of the Mississippi, until they shall have acquired that right by treaty with the U. States, founded on a cession of lands on the East side by said Indians.

An inquiry into the expediency of abolishing the salt tax was also resolved upon, on motion of Mr. Williams of N. Carolina.
The House adjourned to Monday.

The following gentlemen were announced as having been appointed to compose the several committees established on Wednesday last, viz:

Committee on Foreign Affairs.—Messrs.
Forsyth, Holmes, Barbour of Va. Spencer, Baldwin, Allen of Vt. and Hopkinson.

On Military Affairs.—Messrs. Johnson of Ky. Reed, T. M. Nelson, Huntington, Gage, Stewart of N. C. and Peter.

and Bateman.

On the subject of Indian Affairs.—Messrs.

and Pegram.

Storrs, Lewis, Sergeant, Porter, Crafts and Marchand.

lace, Herkimer and Wilson of Mass.

Library Committee on the part of this House.—Messrs. Seybert, Mason of Mass. and Irving.

[The name of Mr. Mercer, one of the committee of Public Lands, was accidentally omitted in the list of that committee, given on Friday.]

A London ministerial paper has taken the liberty to prescribe as follows, for the liver complaint with which Napoleon was said to be afflicted:—"Unobserved exercise, especially at night! Unassisted escape to an American vessel. Unexpected landing in France. A procession to Paris. A levy of eight hundred thousand men for a march to Berlin and Vienna in behalf of the peace of Europe! After taking—these places, the patient will find himself considerably bet-

TRIAL FOR MURDER.

John Rutter's trial, for the murder of Francis Day came on at Newcastle, Delaware, last week; and on Monday, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty.

Francis Day and John Rutter, of Brandywine, who were gunning together on or near Cherry Island Marsh, had a quarrel on some account, and Rutter, after having threatened to shoot Day, executed his horrid menace, and left his victim weltering in blood, without assistance, till some casual passengers found him and conveyed him to Brandywine village. His arm was shattered to pieces, and his side lacerated, which caused his death before day the next morning. [Philadelphia Daily Adv.

COMMERCIAL.

A writer in the Glasgow Courier, in taking a view of the imports and exports of the Clyde in the year ending in May, 1818, thus speaks of the United States:—

"The imports from the United States last year into the Clyde were 30,612 bags of cotton. This could not cost less than £1, 400,000. These states take from us, in round numbers, 6,600,000 yards cottons and linens, worth, say £320,000, and with miscellaneous articles, we shall say £400, 000, thereby leaving a balance of 1,000,000 that we have to pay them in money.

"Their ships carry away but few articles beyond those I have enumerated. The United States exported last year cotton to the value of $23,127,614, or five millions sterling, most of which came to Great Brittain."

The editors of the Norfolk Beacon have been furnished by a commercial friend, with the following extract of a letter, dated Halifax, 31st Oct. 1818.

"Flour is tried at auction daily, and 52s a 11s, but no sales. Bread is without price.

Crackers, a small quantity would sell.
Sugars from 60 a 70s. Jam, rum, 5s 3d; Windward Island, 4s 3d; Molasses, 3s.

"White and red oak staves are in much demand; although no price can be stated for them, they are asked for however for some West India vessels. 22 inch cypress shingles, could they be shown here, would do well. Pitch and tar, none in market.

CASE OF SEDUCTION.

Last evening terminated the cause of Ann Suffea vs. Edmund Seaman, for the seduction of her daughter Catharine. The jury were sworn on Friday morning last, and the trial occupied the best part of 3 days; during most of which time, the court-room was crowded, the two last days, almost to suffocation. No similar cause, nor indeed any cause for a long time, has excited so much interest in the spectators.

The plaintiff is a poor widow, who, with the aid of this daughter, supported herself with her needle; the defendant, a young merchant in lucrative business.

The nature of the action itself; the trying situation of the young daughter as principal witness; her personal appearance when she was called upon the stand; so modest in her looks and deportment; so timid her air, as she raised her eyes to the jury; her whole countenance, so pale and saddened by sorrow, together with her apparently artless and pathetic story, told in terms of decency and propriety: on the other hand, the defence set up, viz. loss of chastity previous to the defendant's acquaintance with her, which was testified by several witnesses, most of whom were females; the irreconcilable contradictions, both positive and circumstantial, between the witnesses, so direct and so many, that the court and jury were compelled to believe that there was nothing less than the most flagrant and corrupt perjury on the one side or the other; all this was calculated to excite an unusual degree of interest in the mind of every one that was present.

On Saturday evening, Messrs. Price and Emmet addressed the jury on behalf of the defendant, with much force, acuteness and eloquence, which brought it to so late an hour that the court adjourned to yesterday morning, when Messrs. Banner and Ogden closed on the part of the plaintiff, in a strain of eloquence and conviction which seemed to bear down all before it. The judge, at length charged the jury, in a very perspicuous and impartial manner, and entered, with nice discrimination, into an elaborate examination of the mass of testimony which had been given, particularly on the part of the defendant. He said there was undoubtedly, in this case, the most wilful and corrupt perjury, nor did he leave the jury in doubt on which side he thought it lay. This scene of inquiry, it was not to be supposed, had not been procured without reward, and if so, he said, this was more criminal conduct than any that had preceded it. And yet, the jury, after an absence of about three hours, returned into court, with a verdict for the defendant. When polled, that is, asked separately if that was their verdict, one of them, Mr. M'Menomy, the auctioneer, added, with good emphasis, and sound discretion, "most decidedly."

We understand there will be a motion at the next term to set it aside, as being contrary to evidence.

BONAPARTE'S ARRIVAL AT ST. HELENA.
[From "Secret Letters," supposed to be written by Madame Bertrand.]

One morning, whilst I was still reposing in my hammock, my maid entered the cabin sooner than usual, to inform me that the Emperor and Gen. Bertrand were already on deck, and that the Island of St. Helena was within sight. I cannot describe, Caroline, the singular and mingled sensations which I experienced on hearing this news.
My heart throbbed with anxiety. The thought of being so near our prison filled me with sorrow; and yet I was overjoyed to reflect that our tedious voyage was almost at an end, that I should soon begin, as it were a new life, devoted to the means of recovering freedom. I hastily put on my morning dress, and was on deck in a few moments.

There I discovered, at an immense distance, a blue mountain, the middle of which was obscured by clouds, though the summit rose above them. The people on deck told me that we were then about 80 English miles from the Island. The horizon, which in the South Sea had hitherto been clear and brilliant, now assumed a thick and misty appearance over St. Helena, and seemed to wrap us in a veil of cloud on our arrival.
Napoleon was standing on the deck so buried in contemplation that he did not observe me. His arms were folded, and his hat drawn over his forehead. His countenance seemed perfectly composed; but it was evident that something was working strongly in his mind, for during the whole quarter of an hour that I stood near him, he did not take a pinch of snuff.

At length he turned round as though he had just awoke from a dream, and perceiv-ing me, smiled, and said, "Well, Madame, you are my Olympus." "Yes, Sir," I replied, "Olympus is always the abode of Jupiter."

A telescope was placed before him; he looked through it for a few moments, and then ordered it to be taken away. "I wish," said he, "to enjoy the satisfaction of seeing these rocks gradually unfold themselves." But this was a melancholy satisfaction. As you will readily suppose, Caroline, we remained on deck the whole of the day. The blue hill by degrees separated, and soon appeared an irregular mass of broken rocks, rising perpendicularly out of the sea, here and there forming immense impending cliffs, separated from each other by narrow valleys or rather ravines. Nature can present nothing more dreary than these black barren masses of rock, unadorned either by trees or shrubs, and from which a peak (called Diana's Peak) rises to the height of about 3000 feet above the level of the sea.

It is probable that the whole Island, has,
at some remote period, been thrown up from the sea by a volcanic eruption, and now the popular volcano of Europe has sent a visitor here who excites more astonishment among the inhabitants than a shower of moon-stones would do. When the Portuguese discovered St. Helena 300 years ago, they little thought it would become a place of banishment for a Corsican hero, after he had driven an imbecile Regent to the Brazils. The British and Dutch never imagined, when 150 years ago they were fighting for this barren rock, that it was destined to receive a mighty sovereign like Napoleon, who will soon issue from it decrees that will work a complete transformation in Europe! As little did the East Indian Company suppose, when they were making establishments at St. Helena for their homeward bound ships, that it would one day become the prison of him who has so often threatened their destruction.

The approach of night at length drove us from the deck. It was our custom to spend the evening in the Emperor's cabin, but on that occasion he expressed a wish to be alone. He slept none that night; for, through the thin partition that divided our cabins, we heard him continually moving about, and we never for a moment closed our eyes.

The anxious wish to obtain a nearer view of our new home, and eagerly to explore every corner that might be favorable to our projects, rendered our eyes watchful, and our tongues silent. In the meanwhile, the fresh breeze continued to carry us forward.
On the following morning, as soon as daylight began to dawn, we all quitted our cabin, ascended the deck, and eagerly turned our eyes towards the land we were approaching, which was still enveloped in mist. At sunrise we cast anchor in front of a little cluster of houses, which our sailors called James Town. This town, which consists only of one street, is built on the sea-shore, on so narrow a space that the back row of houses seem actually to join the rock. I have been told that huge pieces of rock, when loosened by the rain, sometimes roll down, break through the roofs of these houses and bury the inhabitants beneath the ruins; and yet this is the principal town in the Island.

Whether we shall enjoy the honour of residing in the superb capital of St. Helena, or whether a hut will be built for us in some extinguished crater, I know not. But this I know, that the noise on board the ship, joined to the thundering of the cannon, gave me such a violent headache, that I was obliged to lie down. After our salute had been returned by the guns of the fortress, the Captain went ashore in a boat, doubtless to make the necessary arrangements for our landing.

My husband came into my cabin several times, informing me that with the aid of his telescope, he could plainly perceive the whole town in motion, people hurrying from one place to another, soldiers marching about, and messengers climbing the rocks in every direction, probably to convey information of our arrival to such of the inhabitants as were residing at their country houses. My children came running to me twenty times in an hour to tell me what a vast number of boats were rowing from the shore and collecting round our ship.

The Island contains altogether about 2000 inhabitants, and one half the population were at that moment floating on the water, in the hope of seeing a man whom they knew only through the medium of the public journals, and whom they never imagined would visit St. Helena, but on this occasion their curiosity was not gratified, for Napoleon never quitted his cabin, and strict orders were given that no one should be permitted to come on board.

The Emperor evidently expected that the Governor would pay him a visit, but the latter did not think proper to do so.
Late in the evening the Captain returned with a message, informing us, that we must remain on board the vessel until the Emperor's wooden house, which had been brought from Britain, could be got on shore and fitted up for his reception. I was very glad to hear that the Emperor loudly protested against it as being injurious to his health, and declared his determination not to submit to it, observing, that he would rather be lodged in the meanest private house until his own residence should be completed. He had too long been deprived of the recreation of walking and riding and insisted upon going on shore for the sake of exercise—motion, you know is his element.

The Captain spent another day in sailing backwards and forwards, and holding consultations with the Governor. At length he informed us that we had permission to land on the following morning, but that Napoleon must in the meanwhile be contained with the accommodation of a private house. We did not retire to rest the whole of that night, which was the last we spent on board the vessel: we were busily engaged in packing up our things, dressing to go on shore, &c. As soon as the sun had risen, Napoleon appeared on deck in his full uniform, with gold epaulettes and the star of the Legion of Honor. The Governor sent out an elegant boat to convey the Emperor and the principal individuals of his suite on shore. The rest followed the boat belonging to the ship. Napoleon expected that on his quitting the Northumberland the guns of the ship would have been fired to bid him farewell, and that they would have been answered by a salute from the fortress; but on the contrary all was silent. When we landed we of course supposed we should find the Governor on the shore, but we saw nobody but the inhabitants, who had assembled through curiosity to get a sight of us.

Napoleon desired that he might instantly be conducted to his abode; but he was informed that it was necessary he should sit the first place wait upon the Governor.
On hearing this, fire darted from his eyes, but he repressed his indignation, and followed the Captain without uttering a word.
My husband accompanied him. The rest of us proceeded to some private houses on the sea-shore, which had been hastily prepared to receive us; they were situated on the side next the rock, and were surrounded by guards. Soldiers were even stationed on the rock, above the houses, probably to observe how we might employ ourselves if ever we took a fancy to go out on the roofs.

Napoleon soon arrived. He appeared much out of humor, and after rapidly inspecting the few apartments which his new residence contained, he walked up to one of the windows, and took several pinches of snuff. Bertrand afterwards informed me that the Governor did not advance one step to meet him. He received him in his installation politely, but with great formality; and when Napoleon, according to the British custom, wished to shake hands with him, he turned aside with evident embarrassment. He addressed the Emperor by the title of General, made some trifling inquiries respecting his health, and coolly observed, that he would do every thing his instructions permitted to render the General's residence on the Island perfectly agreeable. Napoleon asked a thousand enquiring questions about his future establishment, but to these the Governor sometimes returned only half an answer, and sometimes apologized for not giving any at all, by observing, that he had not yet had sufficient time to become fully acquainted with the nature of his instructions.

But if this formal old fashioned Governor imagined that by such conduct he could counteract the imposing influence of Napoleon's presence, and obliterate the recollection of his mighty deeds, he was completely mistaken; and of this he was himself very soon convinced, for after the conference he courteously attended his exalted visitor to the door; and when in the evening he returned the visit, he appeared to have come solely for the purpose of paying his respect to the Emperor. Napoleon gratified him an audience, and conversed alternately with him and his officers, just as he was wont to do at the Tuilleries, concerning the affairs of Europe, India, and America, trade and agriculture, &c. He inquired, in his inquiries concerning shooting, was much pleased to hear that there was a vast number of partridges on the Island.

He then gently bowed his head, and withdrew to his study.

The person who has my Riley's Native will please to return it. There be no doubt about whose it is, except least that had my name on it is torn out.

As soon as the sun had risen, Napoleon appeared on deck in his full uniform, with gold epaulettes and the star of the Legion of Honour. The Governor sent out an elegant boat to convey the Emperor and the principal individuals of the suite on shore. The rest followed in the boat belonging to the ship. Napoleon expected that on his quitting the Northumberland the guns of the ship would have been fired to bid him farewell, and that they would have been answered by a salute from the fortress; but on the contrary all was silent. When we landed we were of course supposed we should find the Governor on the shore, but we saw nobody but the inhabitants, who had assembled through curiosity to get a sight of us.

Napoleon desired that he might instantly be conducted to his abode; but he was informed that it was necessary he should in the first place wait upon the Governor. On hearing this, he darted from his eyes, but he repressed his indignation, and followed the Captain without uttering a word. My husband accompanied him. The rest of us proceeded to some private houses on the sea-shore, which had been hastily prepared to receive us; they were situated on the side next the rock, and were surrounded by guards. Soldiers were even stationed on the rock, above the houses, probably to observe how we might employ ourselves if ever we took a fancy to go out on the rocks.

Napoleon soon arrived. He appeared much out of humor, and after rapidly inspecting the few apartments which his new residence contained, he walked up to one of the windows, and took several pinches of snuff. Bertrand afterwards informed me that the Governor did not advance one step to meet him. He received him in his apartment politely, but with great formality; and when Napoleon, according to the British custom, wished to shake hands with him, he turned aside with evident embarrassment. He addressed the Emperor by the title of General, made some trifling inquiries respecting his health, and coolly observed, that he would do every thing his instructions permitted to render the General's residence on the island perfectly agreeable. Napoleon asked a thousand eager questions about his future establishment, but to these the Governor sometimes returned only half an answer, and sometimes apologized for not giving any at all, by observing, that he had not yet had sufficient time to become fully acquainted with the nature of his instructions.

But if this formal old fashioned Governor imagined that by such conduct he could counteract the imposing influence of Napoleon's presence, and obliterate the recollection of his mighty deeds, he was completely mistaken; and of this he was himself very soon convinced, for after the conference he courteously attended his exalted visitor to the door; and when in the evening he returned the visit, he appeared to have come solely for the purpose of paying his respect to the Emperor. Napoleon granted him an audience, and conversed alternately with him and his officers, just as he was wont to do at the Tuilleries, concerning the affairs of Europe, India, and America, trade and agriculture, &c. He made some inquiries concerning shooting, and was much pleased to hear that there were vast numbers of partridges on the island. He then gently bowed his head, and withdrew to his study.

The person who has my Riley's Narrative will please to return it. There can be no doubt about whose it is, except the leaf that had my name on it is torn out.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Potomac creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided into lots. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. It is planted with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania. I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain; being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peaches, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might), have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to meat Pothick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

Valuable Property for Sale.
THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house, corn, and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—It would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

Gill Nets! Gill Nets!
To the Citizens of Washington, Frederick, and Montgomery counties.

As the General Assembly of Maryland will sit in the course of a few weeks, I take the liberty of calling the attention of the people of the upper counties to the subject of Gill Nets; that all those who may agree with me in opinion, may unite in petitions to the Legislature to pass such laws as may effectually prevent the use of them hereafter in the Potomac. Since the introduction of these Nets into our waters, the people of the upper counties have experienced the most pernicious effects of this practice. It is a fact well known, that many persons at the last season, after leaving their homes, with their teams, at the most busy season of the year, and travelling, perhaps, from 50 to 100 miles to reach the nearest landings, and after being detained there a considerable time, exposed to the inclemencies of the weather, and often without any shelter but what was afforded to them by the coverings of their waggons, while their crops too were suffering greatly at home, were obliged at last to return without any fish. Some procured their Herrings, but not one in ten could get the Shad they wanted for their families. These Gill Nets, it is said, are fished almost exclusively by persons from the Eastward—a covetous people they must be—they would take the bread from our mouths if they could do it—and they certainly will the fish if left to themselves. It is stated they had 500 vessels engaged in this business during the last season; such a number of Nets will form such an obstruction in the river as to keep back the Shad altogether, and by breaking the schools of Herrings will render even the catching of them uncertain. And what adds to our grievance, the fish that are caught in this manner are not disposed of to our citizens, but are cured on board the vessels that take them, and carried as an article of traffic to some other portions of the Union, or, perhaps, to foreign parts.
The people of the upper counties are peculiarly situated; living remote from any of the Rivers, with which nature has so bountifully watered our state, they have only an opportunity afforded to them once a year of procuring fish of any kind for their families; and it rests with the Legislature to determine whether they shall be deprived of this right, attended as it is too, with great sacrifice, expense and trouble; and it must be known to the members that may compose that body, that fish, from long use and custom, have become indispensable necessary to our families.
If any doubt should exist as to the facts herein stated, I have only to observe that they will be entirely removed by referring to any one from either of the upper counties, who attended at the landings either of the two last seasons, particularly the last.
Having said much more than I intended, I have only to call upon all those who feel no interest in this business, to lose no time in getting signatures to such a petition as I have recommended,—and also to see and converse upon the subject with such persons as they may think proper to send as delegates to the next General Assembly; and I have also to request the favor of the editors of the Fredericktown papers, to give these remarks a place in their respective papers, that the subject may be fully brought before the people of the upper counties.
